NORFOLK, Va. (WVEC) -- Norfolk is launching an initiative to bring more creative businesses downtown.

The Selden Market will be housed in the old Selden Arcade between Main and Plume Streets.

The Downtown Norfolk Council will operate the market, which will include small-businesses, mentors, and kiosks for pop-up businesses.

The initiative is part of Vibrant Spaces. The program features low rents and short-term leases to help businesses shape their model in a low-risk environment.

The Downtown Norfolk Council and the Vibrant Spaces committee is accepting online applications for potential tenants.

Construction will begin this summer. Selden Market should launch in the fall.
